Plan Ahead for March

March is Women's History month, and not only will we have powerful documentaries, but we have the trifecta of strong female period dramas premiering on March 19th! This fantastic night of drama will kick off with the premiere of Call the Midwife season 12, which takes us to 1968, a time of change for women, which will be evidenced in the story line throughout the season. The Passport rollout will be 30 days before each episode. Then we get the third and final season of Sanditon, which will be a feast for the eyes and an emotional rollercoaster. Masterpiece calls this season "highly caffeinated!" The Passport roll out for this season is still to be confirmed, but last season was a weekly roll out so we won't hold our breath for a binge. The last hour of prime time will introduce a new 8-part period drama, Marie Antoinette, which will be edgy and a little bit naughty as we see the teenage queen find her way in the French court. This will indeed be a binge in Passport on the night of the premiere!

We also have the Passport first release of Our Miracle Years on March 16th. Follow three sisters of an industrialist family in post-war Germany. In a politically, morally and economically destroyed country, these young women reinvent themselves and set the course for their future. Members will be able to binge this new 6-episode German-language drama with PBS Passport.
